

THE AIRDEK BLASTING TECHNIQUE FOR RIPRAP CLINTON POINT QUARRY OF NEW YORK TRAP ROCK

Grant ODell, Plant Manager
Clinton Point Quarry
New York Trap Rock Corporation
Lone Star Industries

John Brulia, Vice-President Northeast Explosives, Inc.
Subsidiary of Atlas Powder Company

Abstract

The AIRDEK blasting method has recently been introduced as an overbreak control blasting technique.

This paper discusses the use of a modified AIRDEK blasting method for use in open-face blasting to make cap stone riprap (6-20 ton size) at the Clinton Point quarry of New York Trap Rock Corporation, Lone Star Industries.